Bulletin 2355

Preface

This bulletin presents information assembled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics on anticipated bargaining activity in private industry and in State and local government in 1990. The information in the tables—identified by employer and union—relates only to major bargaining agreements (those covering 1,000 workers or more) which expire or are subject to reopening during the year. It is based on data available to the Bureau as of September 30, 1989. Data summarized in the text are not strictly comparable with those found in tables 1 through 4 because text data include some agreements covering fewer than 1,000 workers.

The bureau maintains a file of major agreements in all industries except railroads and airlines (contracts for which are on file with the National Mediation Board). The Bureau's file is open to the public, except for a few confidential agreements.

This bulletin was prepared by Michael Cimini and Douglas Leroy of the Division of Developments in Labor-Management Relations and Joann Turner of the Division of Directly Collected Periodic Surveys, Bureau of Labor Statistics. Material in this publication is in the public domain and, with appropriate credit, may be used without permission.

A detailed account of bargaining scheduled for 1990 together with a discussion of deferred wage changes and potential cost-of-living adjustments in major collective bargaining appears in the January 1990 Monthly Labor Review.

Collective Bargaining Activity in 1990

Major collective bargaining agreements covering 3.0 million workers are slated to expire or reopen in 1990. These workers constitute 35 percent of the 8.5 million workers under all major agreements (those covering 1,000 workers or more) in private industry and State and local government.

In private industry, scheduled bargaining will cover 2.1 million of the 6.0 million workers under major agreements—about 36 percent, compared with 35 percent in 1989 and 38 percent in 1988.

Workers in private industry whose contracts are slated for renegotiation in 1990 are about equally divided between nonmanufacturing (51 percent) and manufacturing (49 percent) industries. In nonmanufacturing, the largest numbers of workers are in construction with 409,000, wholesale and retail trade (primarily food stores) with 179,000, and trucking and warehousing with 116,000. In manufacturing, the largest numbers are in transportation equipment (primarily automobile manufacturing) with 595,000 and apparel with 97,000.

State and local government bargaining in 1990 will involve 884,000 out of 2.5 million workers under major agreements, or about 35 percent. This proportion was 39 percent in 1989 and 42 percent in 1988. In local government, expiring agreements cover 740,000 workers, 52 percent of whom are in primary and secondary education. In State government, 144,000 workers are covered by contracts slated for renewal and 56 percent are in general administration.

² The agreement is subject to reopening in March 1990 and expires in December 1990.

NOTE: A few agreements covering less than 1,000 workers are included because until recently they had covered at least 1,000 workers and may attain that coverage soon. Employment figures are those existing at the time of the last collective bargaining settlement. See the appendix for an explanation of the employer and union abbreviations and the industrial classification code numbers used in this table.
